

Profile

Dr. Joshua Felman has been head of the International Monetary Fund office in India since August 1, 2006. Prior to this assignment, he was a senior official at IMF headquarters in Washington DC, where he was in charge of the Fund's operations in Korea and responsible for its research on Asian issues.

Dr. Felman has had a long involvement in Asia. During the Asian crisis, he was the Fund's representative in Indonesia, where he worked closely with the country's authorities in restoring its banking sector back to financial health. Subsequently, he was in charge of the IMF's operations in the Philippines, as that country was working to overcome the lingering effects of the crisis.

Dr. Felman did his graduate work at Oxford University in England.
